

Environment & Trade e-learning course

The relationship between international trade and the environment is complex. Governments have emphasized the importance of trade and environmental policies being mutually supportive in order to encourage sustainable development. This free and self-paced online course takes a deeper look at the legal framework set out by the Agreements of the World Trade Organization (WTO), at trade-related measures in Multilateral Environmental Agreements (MEAs), at environmental provisions within Regional Trade Agreements, and how these interplay.

Find out more at elearning.informea.org

 InforMEA